Not sure what size to order?

Simply grab a tape measure, a willing partner for those awkward to reach places and follow the guidelines below. And if by chance you did order the wrong size, don't worry that's why we've got the no quibbles returns policy.

Where to Measure

Waist

Without bending measure around your waist making sure the tape measure feels comfortable, not over-tight or too loose.

Hips (B)

Measure around the widest part of your hips and bum.

Inside leg (C)

Biking trousers are designed to sit slightly higher than everyday trousers.

Find a comfortable point above the waistband of a normal pair of trousers (closer to your actual waist).

Without bending, measure from this point over your hip bone right down to the bottom of your feet (remember to make an allowance for boots or shoes).

Use these measurements to calculate what will be the best size for you using our sizing guides.

Measuring for Boots

Remember to wear your normal riding socks and if you're an all-year-round biker, you might want to make an allowance for the thicker winter socks.

Sole Measurement

Place both feet on a piece of paper and carefully draw the outline of each foot. Keep the pen pointing straight down to get a true outline! Then measure the lengths of both outlines from the top of your big toes to the back edge of your heel. If your two feet measure differently, take the longer of the two measurements.

Measuring for Gloves

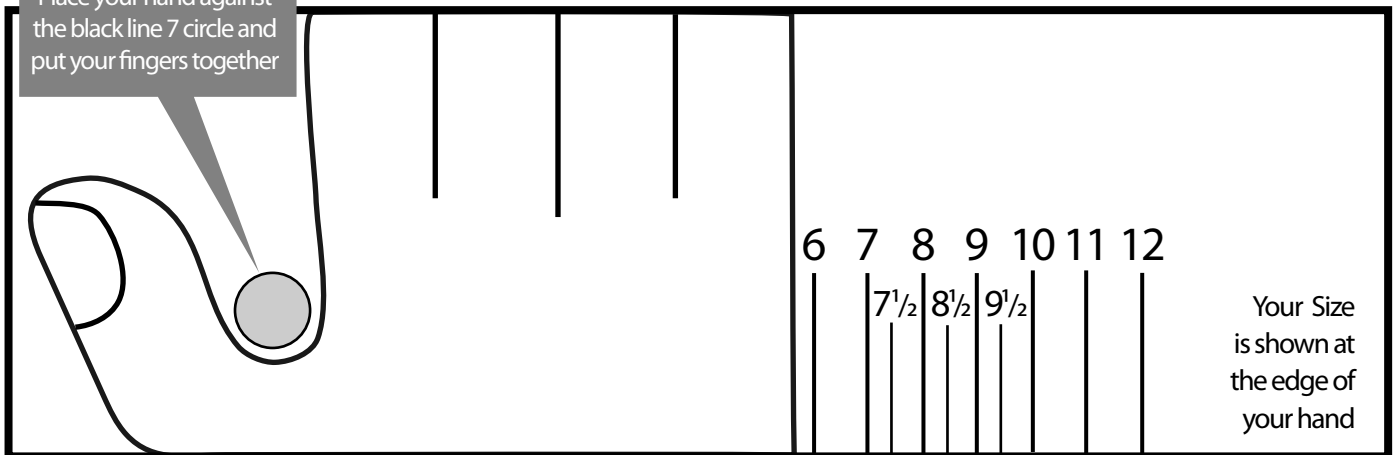

Start by measuring the hand you use the most. Then from the perimeter of the hand between the thumb and the fingers loop around and make a note of the size in CMs.

Remember if you are planning to wear undergloves as well, you may want to go up a size for comfort or if you fall in between sizes, choose the next largest size.
